This was a very simple project incorporating some minor building work enabling the dining room to be opened up into the existing kitchen. The work then included for re-plastering of the ceilings and walls together with their redecoration and for the fitment of a new kitchen.

The project was carried out under a very tight budget and Craymanor Limited worked closely with the client and Howdens to obtain a kitchen that met both the client's requirements in terms of design but also offered excellent value for money.

To complete the works a new laminate floor was laid and as can be seen from the photographs this once drab early seventies kitchen and small rooms has now been created into a fantastic new kitchen and breakfast room with the client receiving a project that offered exceptional quality and value for money.
